

Tommy Johnagin started stand-up at the age of eighteen, dropping out of college at twenty-one to become a full time comedian. Tommy vows he will one day make enough money to pay his parents back for the six semesters of college he wasted.

Tommy is an autobiographical comedian who doesn't curse on stage, takes great pride in his writing, and has a gift of finding something funny in everyone he meets and everything he does. At twenty three Tommy is already a favorite at comedy clubs all across the country working 48 weeks a year on the road.

In 2007 Tommy appeared at the prestigious Just for Laughs Comedy Festival in Montreal where he received the highest marks on the New Faces Showcase.

"My mother is crazy. Her cat was missing for two hours and she was freaking out. 'You know, people take cats and do awful things to them.' My mom is the only person to ever Google cat rape."

Tommy Johnagin, 8.5 to 9 stars. Good timing, great delivery, eclectic subject matter. Anne Sutherland, Montreal Gazette June 20, 2007

Tommy also appeared at Comedy Central's South Beach Comedy Festival in January 2008.
